

Creating Accessible and Inclusive Communities

Phase 2 Engagement Summary

City of Moreton Bay is developing a new Disability Access and Inclusion Plan (DAIP) to help guide our journey toward becoming a highly accessible and inclusive city. In early 2026, we shared our draft actions for the new DAIP with the community for feedback.

Engagement snapshot

Between April and June 2026:

- 8 people provided feedback via an online form
- 182 visitors to the project website
- 29 people participated in a focus group or interview
- 1 person provided feedback via email

Participant demographics

- 32% identified as a person with disability
- 100% lived in or serviced City of Moreton Bay
- Focus groups and interviews included:
 - past participants from Phase 1 - people with lived experience of disability, carers, individuals with intersectional experiences, families, service providers, and peak bodies
 - new participants.

What we heard

- There was support for the general direction of the draft DAIP framework
- Increased consideration of lived experience and engagement with peak bodies.
- Include Universal Design in Council policies and documents
- More needs to be done to reduce accessibility barriers in the built environment, and in digital services and information
